Grenada Band To Give Concert Monday, Dec. 13th

First Concert Of Season To Be Given In Grenada High School Auditorium

The Grenada School Band will present their first concert of the season, Monday night, December 13, in the High School auditorium. Included on the program will be Marches, Overtures, and Novelties. There will be a Ragtime Wedding such as has never before been seen or heard in Grenada. Those who have seen this feature in rehearsal report it to be one of the funniest events of the year.

The band has been working particularly hard to make this one of the most enjoyable programs ever presented on a local stage.

Tickets which are sold for this entertainment have on them a place on which purchasers may cast a vote for band sponsor. The high school classes have each nominated two (2) girls who are candidates for this honor, and the public is urged to give careful consideration as to whom their vote is given.

The girls which have been chosen are:

9th Grade—Grace Smith and Betty Rule.

10th Grade—Austine Kelly and Elizabeth Degan.

11th Grade—Mary Douglas Honoyett and Helen Horton.

12th Grade—Claire Weir and Ann Neely.

The entire proceeds from this concert are to be kept by the band to be used in paying expenses to the State Contest next spring. Since there is to be no financial canvass of the town to raise money this year you are urged to take this opportunity to help the band and at the same time attend a fine musical program.

General admission is 15c and 25c. Program begins promptly at eight o'clock.

City Recorder Back At Work

Mrs. Willie West, City Recorder, was sufficiently recovered to meet with the board of aldermen at their regular monthly meeting Monday night.

Mrs. West has been confined to her home for the past month due to the strain of over-work and we were certainly glad to see her up and about again.

Mr. John Thomas Nason, 90 Years Of Age, Passes

Mr. Nason Had Been In Declining Health For Some Time Before His Death

Grenada lost one of its oldest and most beloved citizens when Mr. John Thomas Nason passed away at his home here last Sunday afternoon, December 9th, at 5:30 o'clock.

Funeral services were conducted the following afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home with Rev. C. S. Little, pastor of All Saints Episcopal Church officiating. Interment followed at Odd Fellows cemetery.

Mr. Nason was born October 2, 1847 in the Spring Hill Community, Beat One, Grenada county. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nason. His mother's maiden name was Miss Leah Koone. On February 8, 1882, he was married to Miss Juliette Gerard in the house in which he was living at the time of his death. Shortly afterward they moved to their farm, the place of his birth, and made their home there until about thirty years ago when they returned to the home of their marriage. Mr. Nason was a member of the Episcopal Church and became a member of the Masonic Order in 1874.

While Mr. Nason's primary business was farming, he was interested in many business undertakings. For a number of years he was a director in the Bank of Commerce of Grenada and made every effort to make this bank a worthwhile institution. He was charitable with everyone, both white and black, and all who knew him loved and respected him.

Mr. Nason had lived a long and useful life and Grenada county will miss him, but "he was ready to meet the Great Redeemer" and can now dwell in peace in his place in the skies that God prepared for him.

Pallbearers were his nephews, Frank S. Paul, William, Frank T. Ashford, and Gus Gerard.

To his wife, who survives him, and many friends, The Sentinel extends sympathy.

Christmas Parade Wednesday Afternoon, December 15

Grenada and Duck Hill Bands Will Lead The Highly Decorated Floats

Grenada will stage a Christmas parade next Wednesday afternoon, December 15, shortly after four o'clock and it promises to be a panorama of the spirit of the Christmas season.

There will be several highly decorated floats, the Grenada Band, and the Duck Hill Band, (it is the hope of the Parade Committee that other bands will participate, but at the time we go to press arrangements are not complete and we cannot give full details) and Grenada Girls' Pep Squad will participate, and entertainment and the joy of the Christmas Holidays will prevail. Galaxies of star-like incandescent lamps will sparkle from the show-windows, building-fronts and trees. It will be Grenada's way of carrying the Christmas spirit—undimmed—through the most appropriate medium, a parade and for all the community to share.

Don't miss it—be in Grenada for the Christmas parade next Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. William I. Gates Funeral Held In Grenada Monday

Mrs. Gates Was An Aunt Of Miss Courtney Tatum of Grenada.

Mrs. William I. Gates, who before her marriage, was Miss Minnie Holley, a former Grenada resident, died Saturday, December 4 at the home of her son, Byron Gates, in Monroe, La.

Funeral services were conducted here from the home of her niece, Miss Courtney Tatum, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with Rev. C. A. Parks, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating. Interment followed at Odd Fellows cemetery.

Mrs. Gates was born in Grenada county on July 11, 1867. Early in life she became a member of the Methodist Church. Shortly after her marriage she and husband moved to Grenada and made their home here until about thirty years ago. After the death of her husband she moved to Memphis and lived there for about eight years. Since that time she has made her home with her son, Byron in Monroe.

Pall bearers were: Messrs. Albert and Burns-Tatum, B. J. Anderson and Ben Brown and her two sons, Guy and Byron.

Mrs. Gates is survived by two sons, Guy, of Columbia, La., and Byron, of Monroe, La.

The deceased is the father of Mr. George Darby, now of Tunica, who was for several years employed by the local Ford agency and who has many friends here.

Enjoyed the intelligent educational address of County Superintendent of Education, O. D. Spratlin Friday night. It contained much timely information.

To Mississippi Methodism Hoyt M. Dobbs

"A dining room table with children's eager, hungry faces around it, ceases to be a mere dining room table, and becomes an altar."

Such an altar stands to the glory of God, and to the honor of all our people, in the city of Jackson, where daily large numbers of homeless children assemble to enjoy their food and drink in the name of Him who blessed little children by the words of His hands.

The North Mississippi Conference at Clarksdale, and the Mississippi Conference at Hattiesburg, unanimously authorized us to take immediate steps toward the payment of our debt on the orphanage property. United and determined effort between now and December 31st will take us to victory.

Through the generous offer of eight noble friends the sum of $10,250.00 will be donated on condition that the whole debt of $170,000.00 be paid by December 31st of this year. We have $4,000.00 in bank—making a total initial response of $14,250.00 as we begin the campaign.

By these terms, we have the privilege of earning a cash prize of $10,250.00. This is a golden opportunity.

Every Presiding Elder, every Pastor, every Official Board, every member of the Methodist Church in Mississippi is asked to meet this fortunate hour in the spirit of the Christmas time and with business-like determination.

I appeal not only to the Methodists, but to all the friends of homeless children in Mississippi. A check sent to Judge H. V. Watkins, at Jackson, will give the donor joy, and help to bring release from debt to a most worthy institution. I have stated the facts. Prompt and decisive action will light the lamps and ring the bells at the Children's Home.

Appeal is made to local Methodists to respond to this appeal for liquidation of the debt on the Methodist Orphanage. Opportunity will be given each member to contribute to this fund. The campaign for this money will be made the week of December 12-19. Rev. C. A. Parks.

You Have Seen Their Faces

(By W. E. Bousabe)

Much space is being taken in the papers today on the subject "Tenant Farmer and Organization of Tenants." Sunday in the Commercial Appeal were some photographs showing the miserable plight of tenants taken from an anarchistic publication entitled, "You Have Seen Their Faces."

Yes, I have seen their faces and you have seen their faces. They are sometimes, alas too often, come across, but upon investigation the chances are that farming is only a side line. Bootlegging or some other form of lawlessness or idleness being the real livelihood or starvation—as the case may be—hidden under the cloak of farming. Yes, I have seen their faces and you have seen their faces. A few years ago I went with Mr. Kirk to one JUST SUCH. They were even more ragged than the picture showed those tenants. Mr. Kirk had furnished them money, mules and supplies. They lived out the year without plowing a furrow, without raising a chicken or hog or cow. Though able-bodied they depended on relief and charity. They would beg from the negroes round about. I have seen Mr. Kirk, even though they were already heavily indebted to him, carry provisions and give to the children. They burned the fences, the out houses and even parts of the house they lived in rather than haul wood, though they had teams to haul with. They picked berries and muddled holes of water to catch fish rather than work. I have seen their faces and so have you.

Then, there is another class of tenants, such as some of my own tenants and probably your tenants as they are the majority. They work hard and fast, perhaps three or four months of the year, (Please turn to page 8)

Grenada County Tenant Families Chosen To Receive FCA Aid

Five Families To Be Given Opportunity Of Becoming Small Farm Owners

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 8.—At least five carefully selected farm tenant families in Grenada will soon be given the opportunity of becoming small farm owners through loans and supervisory assistance to be offered by the Government under terms of the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Loan Act.

Grenada county was one among 28 counties selected by the nine-member State Farm Security Advisory Committee named recently by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace. The secretary's approval of the committee's recommendations was announced this week.

The Farm Security Administration, which is responsible for administration of the Bankhead-Jones program, has announced that because of the small appropriation available for making loan this year and the necessity for holding administrative costs to a minimum, it is necessary to concentrate loan activities in a selected group of counties in the state this year. Not less than five loans nor more than 10 will be made in each county chosen. Terms of the measure provide for increasing the appropriation for this work from the $10,000,000 available this year to $25,000,000 for the next fiscal year. This will allow spreading the opportunities to tenants in other counties in the state as the program progresses.

FSA officials hope to select tenants to receive loans and locate them on the farms to be purchased in time to make a crop next spring. Loans will average about $3500, the size depending on the type of farming to be done, improvements required, and other factors. Enough money will be loaned each tenant to enable him to purchase a family-size farm of sufficient size and fertility to support an accepted standard of living and to make essential improvements. The borrower must agree to follow a carefully planned farm and home program based on accepted standards and practices advocated by the state extension service.

Administrative duties in connection with the tenant purchase program have been assigned the county FSA rehabilitation supervisor in each of the participating counties.

The three-man committee of farmers will be named soon in each of the designated counties to advise with the supervisor in the selection of applicants, appraisal of tendered land and similar details.

In fitting up their kitchen and dining room the ladies of the First Baptist Church, with the assistance of the Men's Bible Class have purchased a very attractive set of China. The design is unusually lovely and is finished with a very appropriate monogram "F. B. C." in colors to match. The service is complete for a hundred and fifty, and is truly a worthwhile Christmas present.

Bible Sunday Is Endorsed By Gov. Hugh L. White

Protestant Churches of Nation Unite In Observance of Universal Bible Sunday

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 9.—Governor Hugh White urges the churches of Mississippi to observe Universal Bible Sunday on next Sunday, December 12.

The Protestant churches of the nation will also unite next Sunday in the observance of Universal Bible Sunday. They will remind the people of the nation of the universal place which this great book has had in the making of our nation and the nations of the world. This year for the first time the celebration is to include a nationwide broadcast over the Columbia net work at 1:30 P. M. in which the Secretary of State, the Honorable Cordell Hull, and Mr. John T. Mason, president of the American Bible Society, will speak. The celebration, as formerly, is sponsored by the American Bible Society by whose uninterrupted missionary activities, now in their 122nd year, approximately 285,000,000 volumes of Scriptures have been distributed in more than forty countries and in 226 languages.

In endorsing Universal Bible Sunday Governor White says: "Just about a year ago, it was my pleasure to write you of my sincere endorsement of the worldwide observance of Universal Bible Sunday. I believe that I commented then, that a daily reading of the Bible in all homes would go far toward eliminating a great many of the evils which beset the world."

"I have had no occasion to change my mind on this matter within the past year, in fact, I am more strongly convinced than ever that a more thorough study of the Bible in all homes, schools and churches would help us as Americans and as Christians."

"I would be very happy to have you use any endorsement of mine for observance of Universal Bible Sunday, and if I can do anything more to further this cause, I shall be very glad."

Basketball Games Here Friday, Dec. 17

Four of the fastest basketball teams in the state will play here when the Holmes girls and the Sunflower boys, defending champions of the Junior College Conference, meet opposing teams here Friday, December 17th.

Grenada High School is presenting these teams to the belief that games of this sort will stimulate interest in high class basketball. Both of these teams draw players from the schools of this section of the state, Grenada, Jeff Davis and DeRma being among the schools represented.

This is an opportunity for the people of Grenada and neighboring towns to see college basketball at unusually low admission prices. Admission: School children 25c—Adults 40c. A special admission price of 25c is offered to all coaches, superintendents and teachers.

Grenada Band One Of First In Nation In Honor Society

Fine Work Done By The Band Places Them In An Envious Position

Receives Letter From Secretary Mr. Roger Dollarhide, Grenada, Miss.

Dear Roger: I take pleasure in writing you that the Grenada High School Band has been selected as one of the first bands in the United States to be offered a charter in the National Band and Orchestra Honor Society.

The fine work your band has done and the record that they have made have placed them in this enviable position. Your charter application is enclosed and you will be expected to return it not later than December 1st, as this is the date set for these charters to go out.

The enclosed leaflet explains the general idea back of this organization. I compliment your organization on having been selected for this honor and wish for you and them continued success.

Respectfully,

Roy M. Martin, Secy-Treas.

National Band and Orchestra Assn. Editor's Note:—Officers of this association are: A. R. McAllister, President; Wm. D. Revelli, Vice-President and Roy M. Martin, Secretary and Treasurer. Directors: Edwin France Goldman, A. A. Harding, Victor Grabel, Herbert L. Clarke and Frank Simon.

For the Grenada Band to receive this honor is but another indication that the members of the band and Director Roger Dollarhide have worked hard to achieve their goal, to be "better than the best." The Band Mothers are to be commended too, for they have certainly put forth every effort to assist the band in achieving its goal.

Grenada Farmers To Receive $45,000 In Soil Payments

Urged To Qualify and Make Application For Payments Immediately

(By J. L. Cooley, County Agent)

Farmers of Grenada county are eligible to receive approximately $45,000 in soil conserving and soil building payments under terms of the 1937 Soil Conservation program. Five hundred and ninety-nine farmers made work sheets to participate in the 1937 program. These work sheets covered 22,734 base acres, which represent 75% of the base acreage allotted to the county. Approximately 25% of the farms in the county did not participate in the 1937 program. The cooperating farmers will be paid approximately $30,000 for diverting 4,000 acres of cotton land to growing food and feed crops. In addition they may receive about $15,000 Soil Building payments for terracing their farms to control soil erosion and for growing the following soil improving crops: Hairy vetch, Austrian winter peas, bur clover, lespedeza, soy beans, row peas and crotonaria.

Payments Needed By Tax Paying Time

Our farmers are urged to plow under the necessary fields of peas and soy beans to earn their soil-building payments immediately so that applications for the benefit payments can be made this month in order that the payments can be made by tax paying time. As soon as the necessary fall plowing has been done all farmers are urged to visit the county agent's office and make the necessary applications. All landlords are requested to furnish a list of their tenants showing the share in crop due each tenant and the acreage of cotton and corn and legumes grown by each tenant.

18,746,000 BALES OF COTTON '37 CROP IS FINAL ESTIMATE

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Agriculture Department, in its final 1937 estimate, predicted today a cotton crop of 18,746,000 bales—the largest on record and upwards of 5,000,000 bales more than 1936's expected seeds.

HIGHER ACHIEVEMENT

We have been going to school for twelve weeks now. Everyone knows just how he stands in his studies for this period of time. Is everybody satisfied? The answer is "no."

The last six weeks grades are just about the average. They show some taking advantage of their opportunities and advancing; some lagging along, half-heartedly, indifferent, scarcely making a passing grade, if passing at all. Despairing thought isn't it—just coasting, making no headway.

It would indeed be despairing if it were not for students with pride, vitality, and foresight enough to make the grades, make a record. Make a record for the school so high that despite your own laziness, shiftlessness, and indifference the school holds a scholarship record among the highest. Yes, their high record pulls your low work up for the benefit of the school, but what about you? Nobody can help your individual grade but you and you alone.

School is the place to show what your future will be. No student goes to school but has ambition, ambition to rise in the world, ambition to do something against opposition, ambition to be able someday to be considered a definite asset to his community and country. That ambition is a dream, but dreaming won't attain the goal. There must be work—work to the best of one's ability.

We are all here today in the greatest institute for our advancement, for the achievement of the final reward. We might know in ourselves that we are capable but that ability must be shown to others, and ability is shown through accomplishment.

Enthusiastically, determinedly set your ultimate goal, high, and start now. Build your foundation strong and deep. Build so powerfully that in your mind there's not the least bit of concern about the stability of your work. Brace up, work, work and attain!

Not a single one in high school is incapable of passing. All we need is backbone and determination. Both are in the will. Make that will "to do or die" and next six weeks the grades will be better and you will feel confident and proud, and we'll all feel proud of you.

The past forever gone; the future still our own.

OBSERVATION OF RULES

So far this year there has been no unpleasant penalties placed upon the student body in order to obtain strict observance to rules. They have not been placed because Miss Hammond had much prefer that rules be observed without compulsion. No student likes to think that he's being absolutely forced into obedience. So far occasion has not arisen to take small liberties from the students as a whole. We congratulate you, students on your fine attitude. May the same attitude continue throughout the year.

"Always the majority of the students adhere to the rules and regulations but always someone has to be different and abuse the liberties given. The liberties have to be withdrawn from the acts of the minority. That isn't being entirely fair with your classmates, students, to make them suffer for your conduct.

Let's all go one hundred percent for good conduct this year and cooperate fully in order that our privileges now given may be continued.

Grenada Boy Makes Good

Again Grenada boys prove their stamina and reflect the training of their school. Granvil Hamby and Jones Allison, graduates of the class of '37 gain recognition in their first year of college football as outstanding players. Jones receives honorable mention as a 1937 all-state Junior College teamster.

As for Granvil we will quote Paul Robertson, "Daily News": There is little doubt but that Oscar (Honey) Britt and Granvil (Grandma) Hamby are the two best guards in the conference. They have outplayed every guard the Co-Lin team has been up against this year, and when it is considered that three-fourths of the champions' scores from ground attacks were made behind this section, while not one score was gained over it all the year, one sees why these two Co-Lin guards get first honors. Both are fast, young, rough, strong, sturdy; both can run interference splendidly, especially down the field, and both have held like a stone wall on all Wolf forward passes thrown from the back garden. In addition, Hamby has accounted for 13 points alone this year, through conversions of kicks from placement after touchdowns, and has one field goal to his credit in one attempt.

Grenada High is proud of these boys.

The basketball teams of Holmes Junior College of Goodman and the basketball teams of Sunflower Junior College, of Moorhead, will play in the Grenada High gymnasium on the night of Friday, December 17. Last year the Holmes Junior girls and Sunflower Junior boys were victors for the Junior College State Championship.

Mary Rounsaville, who played on the Grenada High team last year and honored by being selected all Star North Central Mississippi forward a year ago, is playing with the Sunflower basketball girls. Mary is well remembered for her good athletic work in basketball and track.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this game, so please be there to see two Grenada High School graduates.

Fire Drill

Thursday afternoon shortly after 3:00, the fire bell suddenly sounded through the halls of the high school. Immediately doors to the fire escapes were thrown open. Students hurriedly arose and with quick step, orderly vacated the building. Not a second was lost, yet everything was under perfect control. The reason for all this? A fire drill.

The High School building has almost no fire hazards whatsoever. Every known means of insulation and safety has been employed. Nevertheless, the students are prepared for an emergency. Every student knows exactly where to go, without hesitancy and the building can safely be emptied in a very short time.

Next week we hope to give you a sample of the notes that escape Miss Hammond's eye. They are absolutely authentic.

An introduction was not needed for our personality No. 1 this week. As soon as we set eyes upon her we knew her because hadn't we heard enough talk about her. Instead of telling you about meeting her, I'll tell you all about what I heard concerning her.

Among the Freshmen she had the reputation of being hard-boiled and out for fresh's hides. Among the Sophomores a sigh of relief was audible because they didn't take English in the north room on the third floor front room. The Juniors merely mumbled, "metonymy, authenticity," at mention of her name. I was almost expecting a tyrant, but I decided to talk to some Seniors before I made up my mind.

I mentioned her name to a group of Seniors. Immediately expensive looking class rings were flashed in my face and an accompanying roar of praise swamped me in astonishment of such enthusiasm. Endless reasons gushed forth from these ardent Senior admirers why she was their best friend. More statements of why they considered her the shining light, the leading star, the magnificent standby of all Seniors. In other words, I gathered that they were slightly pleased with her.

PERSONALITIES NO. 2

(By More Meddler)

Recently Anna Rose introduced us to a fellow here at Grenada High School who, we think, makes quite an impression of the school. Sorry, but I can't say what kind of an impression I only say good things about folks. As far as I could ascertain by the conversation that Anna and he carried on he must be two different fellows. I couldn't figure it out but maybe you can. It seems that Anna was talking about him but when she talked he was the most illustrious, dashing, sensible blunderer on the eleven. She said that he was a model in everything except liking her. But when he talked he convinced us that he was just the opposite to what she had pictured him as being in everything except the way he felt about her. She was right about that but we believed him on the rest.

Another thing that made us think he was Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde was his name. Not once did I hear anybody call him by his right name, or by the name he was introduced to me by. Always he was called names more appropriate such as "Lum," "Lula," "Chum," "Beautiful," etc.

I've only ten here about a week but I hope I meet some more folks before I leave. I did want this to be a visit that I could brag about when I got back home in Little Texas.

Seniors Sell Emblems, Caps

The Senior class still has for sale school emblems and caps. The emblems are to be sewed on sweaters or other wearing apparel. The Bulldog and the word "Grenada" stand out as the initial attraction of the emblems. The caps, made of wool felt and in the school colors, maroon and white, are singularly attractive. Please place your order with a senior if you desire either or each. Emblems sell for twenty-five cents and caps for fifty cents.

25 YEARS AGO IN GRENADA

December 12, 1912
 P. T. Williams, of Williamsville, dropped into this office a day or two ago and left some subscription money, which was duly appreciated.

Several days this week doing some electrical work. He is an expert electrician and can be relied upon to execute promptly and well any work he contracts to do. His prices are reasonable.

Arnold Pressgrove, of near Castella, was in town this week. Mr. Pressgrove is one of the many substantial citizens of old Tallahatchie and the writer has long esteemed him as a special friend.

There will be a special and informal service at the First Baptist Church on next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and night. The night subject will be: "The Treatment of Mother." All are urged to attend.

J. H. and Chester H. Brown, capitalists and wholesale merchants, of Grenada, were visitors here Wednesday, paying taxes and transacting business. Chester Brown and his estimable family will leave Grenada in a short while for Asheville, N. C. where they will reside in the future.—Tallahatchie Herald.

Grenada is still adding to her attractions in the way of residences. Only recently the Owens home on the corner of Line and First Streets was remodeled and is now one of the most attractive residences in Grenada. C. E. Lockett is going to practically make over the old Wheat residence, and W. A. Carl is adding the finishing touches to a very handsome brick residence on College Avenue. This new house is well constructed and is going to be one of the prettiest homes in Grenada.

Last Friday Miss Anne Elise Roane entertained with a hose shower in honor of Miss Elvir Winter, a charming bride of next week.

Miss Mary Roane assisted graciously in welcoming those arriving. Miss Winter was particularly attractive in a lovely costume of American Beauty chamoisee draped in black, with a picture hat of black fur and gold lace with aigrette. The rooms are open to the guests were elaborately decorated in vines, ferns, and violets, a violet color motif prevailing. Tiny parasols suitable for a "shower" were the favors. Tied to small cards, they marked the guests' places at tables where several rounds of "hearts" were played.

The violet mote was carried out effectively in the refreshments served afterward.

Then the climax of the afternoon was reached when a realistic imitation of the fire alarm was heard from outside, and little Daisy Leigh Roane dashed in dragging a miniature hose cart. The varied assortment of lovely host was pinned together in a long string and rolled around the reel.

Little Louise Hoffa followed with a basket to place the hose in as they were reeled off and separated into pairs. Then she and Daisy Leigh stepped just back of the fair honoree and pulled the lavender ribbons, which released the shower of rice from a tulle basket on the chandelier.

The departing guests expressed much pleasure in the afternoon's fun and many good wishes for the bride-elect.

Col. William Rounsaville, a brilliant ex-Confederate soldier and horse-swapper-in-chief, of the northern district of Mississippi, residing near Rosebloom, spent several days this week mingling with friends and attending to business.

Col. Rounsaville has a host of friends throughout this Grenada and Tallahatchie counties, who wish for him many years of happiness and fun, with whom he joins most heartily.—Tallahatchie Herald.

The "Colonel" has a wide range and is the original in the horse swappers' brigade.

ROAMING Through The GLOAMING

"Doc Pepper," better known as "Pop," was in "hog heaven" last Friday night. He was at the basketball game with that "gal of his."

"Sleepy" and Frances are still progressing.

Elizabeth Baker's heart aches was eased a little Friday. He sat by her in the gym. (He's a drug store cowboy.)

Aw, Mr. Randle, take pity on Jack, he likes that Pop Squad as a whole lot.

Ladies and gents, it is well worth your money you pay for the basketball game, just to see Claude Parks.

E. L. was there with Gene.

Cora says her three fellows are Fred Murray, Hec Lane, and Jimmy Dunn.

Dear Cora: lend me one. Your friend, Anna Rose.

Mary E. got herself a 1938 Senior ring. The initials were C. C. H. Well, Charlie.

Who's Who This Week? Best athlete—Robert Murphy, who was captain of football team, goes out for basketball, and track.

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

(By J. S. Vandiver)
 We wish to express the appreciation of the State Department of Education and the Crippled Children's Division for the wonderful response given to the request for Thanksgiving donations for the crippled children's work.

The donations received so far this year has surpassed those of previous years which will make it possible to give hospital treatment to a larger number of crippled children. These donations are matched by federal funds which make it possible to continue this very worth while service.

It is our hope that the State Legislature at its next regular session will make an adequate appropriation for the Crippled Children's Division in order to make it possible to give treatment to every crippled child in the state.

There is no department in our State Government which is rendering a more worth while service to humanity than the Crippled Children's Division. The many thousands of school children and the large number of clubs and organizations should feel very proud of having played a part in this great service.

AREN'T ALL MEN TOO HORRID; THEY'RE ALWAYS A DILEMMA

Men are what women marry. They have two feet, two hands, and sometimes two wives, but never more than one callor or one idea at a time. Like Turkish cigarettes, men are all made of the same materials, the only difference is that some are better disguised than others.

Generally speaking, they may be divided into three classes: Husbands, Bachelors, and Widowers. An eligible bachelor is a man of obstinacy entirely surrounded by suspicion. Husbands are of three varieties: prizes, surprises, and consolation prizes.

Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest plastic arts known to civilization. It requires science, sculpture and common sense; faith, hope and charity—especially charity.

It is a psychological marvel that a soft, fluffy, tender violet scented sweet thing like a woman should enjoy kissing a big, awkward, stubby-chinned, tobacco and rum scented thing like a man.

If you flatter a man it frightens him to death, and if you don't you bore him to death. If you permit him to make love to you, he gets tired of you in the end, and if you don't he gets tired in the beginning.

If you believe in everything you soon cease to interest him, and if you argue with him in everything, you soon cease to charm him. If you believe all he tells you, he thinks you are a fool, and if you don't he thinks you a cynic.

If you wear gay colors and rouge and a startling hat, he hesitates to take you out, and if you wear a little brown toque and a tailor-made suit, he takes you out and stares all evening at a woman in gay colors, rouge and a startling hat.

If you join him in his gaities and approve him in his smoking, he swears you are driving him to the devil and if you don't approve of smoking and urge him to give up his gaities, he vows you are driving him to the devil. If you are the clinging vine type, he doubts whether you have a brain, and if you are a modern, advanced and independent woman, he doubts whether you have a heart.

If you are silly, he longs for a bright mate, and if you are brilliant and intellectual, he longs for a playmate. If you are popular with other men he is jealous and if you are not, he hesitates to marry a wall flower.

That settles that!—The Alabama.

PARAGRAPHS From J. K. MORRISON

Mr. Newton James, the popular keeper of the State's big surplus as well as the money for current expenses is yet undecided as to just what next.

Representative Heber Lander introduced the bill for the appointment of highway commissioners. He now favors going back to the elective system.

At a dinner with Hon. Herbert Holmes, of Senatobia, he gave us the first news of the wreck of the Panama Limited. He said about the year, 1914 the fast train ran into an open switch near Coldwater. The engine turned turtle and the engineer, Barnett's brother was badly scalded. He was bathed in oil and rushed to Memphis to a hospital, and he recovered and resumed his work. The second wreck near Senatobia resulted in Engineer Barnett being fatally injured and he died. More than once I have seen him name posted on the engine pulling the throttle of this crack train that connects Chicago and New Orleans. He has made his last run. We sent out a story of the early influence that Judge Wilson had on the life of friend Herbert. I told him what I wrote and he offers this correction: He says that Judge Wilson called him before him at noon and said you have misquoted the statistics. He told him the correct wording and said young man you cannot improve on the work of the statute and that was his lesson number one in chancery court proceedings. . . . Moral . . . Thoroughness.

The labor boys are on the move led by Mr. L. H. Jones and Mr. Byers. The State National Federation of Labor offers to send speakers to Mississippi to educate people to the value of such an act. A campaign of education is being launched and Mississippi no doubt will keep step with every state in the Union except Arkansas. Let us leave Arkansas the record of being the last State to pass such an act. Just as well throw off the yolk of bondage and make Mississippi industrially free.

J. A. Dean, long time agricultural man of the State Department of Agriculture and lately with the Resettlement work was in a wreck several months ago. Saw him some time back at the hotel and he says I feel like sitting down, and that reminds me of the 75 year oldster who consulted a doctor wanting to know what ailed him. Says the doctor, "what are your symptoms?" Said he, "I like sitting down all of the time." There is a good reason for Mr. Dean for he is now in the hospital in Memphis and will be for some months to come under the care of a bone specialist. Mr. Dean takes his physical suffering with fine courage.

Dixie Motor Club Of Miss Organized

Stonerville, Dec. 1.—The Mississippi Association of Chamber of Commerce Secretaries has endorsed the recently organized Dixie Motor Club of Mississippi as a "worthwhile and needed institution, deserving the support of all chambers of commerce in the state."

Wm. Rhea Blake, secretary of the group, announced here today. "Blake addressed a letter to all chambers of commerce secretaries pointing out that the board of directors of the group accorded unanimous approval of the motor club, which under plans now being followed would be affiliated with the American Automobile Association, after W. G. Boaz, manager, appeared before the board at a meeting in Jackson and "explained in detail the background, plans and operation of his organization."

Boaz, who organized and directed the activity of the Dixie Motor Club of West Tennessee, with headquarters in Memphis, and who brought this AAA affiliate through the depression, came to Mississippi at the invitation of citizens in the state who are interested in obtaining the benefits of the AAA in publicizing Mississippi's paved highways. Only Mississippi and North Dakota are not now members of the AAA family.

Officers of the Dixie Motor Club of Mississippi include N. D. West, Clarkdale hotel man, president; William T. Wynn, Greenville attorney, vice-president; and Howard Stovall, Stovall planter, secretary-treasurer. Every section of the state will be represented on the board of directors under plans projected by the officers.

Only World War Will Force Roosevelt To Run Again For Presidency Says Ludwig

New York, Dec. 2.—"Should the great impending European war break out during Roosevelt's administration, then his authority may be great enough, in the hour of danger, to elect him a third time," Emil Ludwig, noted German biographer, states in his "Life of Roosevelt," which is published today for the first time.

The writer in his latest biographical work, appearing in the current Liberty magazine, declares the President will resign his office at the end of three years if there is no definite danger to the country's peace. Ludwig spent considerable time with the President during the past year gathering material for the series.

DR. AND MRS. T. J. BROWN CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Fifty years ago, Tuesday, November 7, Dr. T. J. Brown and the then Miss Jimmy Bibby, were married in the home of Mrs. Brown's parents at Coffeeville, Rev. Dr. R. S. Thomas, Presbyterian minister, performing the ceremony.

Dr. and Mrs. Brown moved to Grenada in January 1890 and have made their home here since that time. Dr. Brown has practiced medicine for 52 years and brought into the world many of the citizens now living in this community, as well as those who have gone on before or moved away.

We were talking with Dr. Brown one day this week and he said: "I am seventy-six years old and in looking back over my life I can't see that I have accomplished much, but there is one thing that I can say; on January 1, 1888 we will have lived in our present home on the corner of College and Margin Streets for forty-seven years and we have so lived that no 'Night Riders' or members of the 'Klu Klux Klan' have ever visited us."

We can't agree with Dr. Brown, for a man that has lived for seventy-six years with home surroundings such that he is privileged to enjoy his own Golden Wedding, and reared three daughters, of all whom he can be justly proud, has accomplished much.

Mrs. Brown was one of the dearest friends our mother had, we know this from what our father has told us, and both Dr. Brown and Mrs. Brown are our friends. And that is the reason that we wish for them many more years of happy married life.

UNIVERSAL BIBLE SUNDAY TO BE OBSERVED

It is fitting that once each year the attention of the nation should be focused on the Bible. Elsewhere in this issue is a statement of the Governor endorsing Universal Bible Sunday to be observed in the churches of the land on December 12. Whatever one's shade of religious belief, he is bound to pay it respect to the Bible. On the Bible all branches of the Christian church unite. The Old Testament comprises the Sacred Scriptures of the Jews. The Bible was the chief book of the fathers of our country. Out of its teachings grew our schools, our colleges, the customs of our courts and the notable humanitarian enterprises that mark our nation's life. It is inextricably woven into our literature. Its phrases form the title of our most popular books. The Bible has outlived all other books. Emerging from a hoary antiquity it is today the world's best seller. Written in languages long dead, it has been preserved in its entirety in 174 other tongues and has been in part translated into over 800 more. The vigor with which it is finding its way into the languages of the race is not abating for, according to the American Bible Society, some portion of the Scriptures is appearing in a new tongue at the rate of one every four or five weeks.

This is a phenomenon without parallel in literary history and should give pause to every serious student of our nation's life and the life of the world. No man can consider himself well-posted who does not know this book. Though a volume of more than a thousand pages it can be bought for a few cents. Do you own a Bible? Do you read it?

LET'S LIGHT UP THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

Many people enter a contest for the fun they get out of it, others for the prize they win. The Christmas Lighting Contest being sponsored in our city for this coming holiday season offers a full measure of both.

A few strings of colored Christmas lights can transform into a fairyland of color a home which loses its exterior identity when darkness falls, into a scintillating Christmas card. It is an original and pleasurable means of expressing one's greetings to friends and neighbors. It even gladdens the heart of the unknown passerby. A home dressed for the holidays in the gayety of color and light seems to embody the warmth of the yule log itself.

There will be civic pride among the citizens of a city so bedecked. Our "City Beautiful" can be a "City of Christmas" if most of us will but enter into the spirit of making it so. Why not all of us?

WORKING OFF BIG STOCKS

Perhaps never before in the history of the country, have the merchants put in such handsome stocks as they have this year in anticipation of Christmas. Possibly they invested more money during the boom days of 1929, but the indications of a big trade this year, and the many novelties and styles designed to tempt money out of its hiding places, were never more fascinating.

It will take much advertising to move these stocks. Dollars saved by not advertising some line, may mean a loss of many more dollars due to carrying the goods over to another season.

Mississippi Lining Up To "Fight Infantile Paralysis"

Organization Work In Mississippi Will Be Under Dr. Felix Underwood

New York, Dec. 8.—(Special to The Grenada Sentinel)—Mississippi is lining up enthusiastically behind this year's "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign, Chairman Keith Morgan of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday declared today.

Strong endorsement from public officials and leading citizens of the Delta State are coming to national headquarters, 50 E. 42nd Street, New York City, Mr. Morgan said. Indications are that "Ole Miss" will go "over the top" in support of the celebrations on January 29, in honor of the President's birthday, funds from which will go to the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Organization work in Mississippi will be under Dr. Felix Underwood, of Jackson, executive officer of the State Board of Health, who as State chairman already is forming numerous committees to handle the various phases of the campaign throughout the state. The organization will extend into every county and through the county committees into every city and town.

This year the campaign has been vastly expanded. The new national infantile paralysis foundation, created by President Roosevelt, will be a permanent organization. The Foundation unifies the fight against the disease on a four-fold front:

1. Scientific Research.
2. Epidemic Action.
3. Telling to Doctors and Parents the NEW CARE now known to PREVENT crooked backs, curvatures of the spine, twisted bodies and contracted limbs.
4. Dollars to Orthopedic Centers (Hospitals, Clinics, etc.) for the IMMEDIATE Restoring of Human Wreckage.

On Saturday, January 29, all kinds of entertainments and parties, sports and wholesome recreation will be held in celebration of the President's birthday. Proceeds from these celebrations will be turned over to President Roosevelt who will give them to the new Foundation.

It is expected that every city and town in Mississippi will have some form of celebration and every one will be invited to participate.

Newspaper publishers of the state are joining the Publishers' Council and many have sent word to Chairman Morgan they will gladly cooperate in the drive. Among those thus represented are: Theron D. Hayden, Amory Advertiser; Charles G. Moreau, Sea Coast Echo, Bay St. Louis; Sumpter Gillespie, Greenwood Commonwealth; Rice Lawrence, Grenada Sentinel; D. W. Gavin, Clarke County Tribune, Quitman; and J. Fred Price, Tupelo News.

Among the endorsements already received from Mississippi State officials and members of Congress are:

Governor Hugh White. "It gives me pleasure to add the influence of my office to the work of the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. I am looking forward to a conference with the President, at which time I hope to learn more of the work being done by the Foundation."

"In the meantime, I have appointed Dr. Felix Underwood, Executive Officer of the State Board of Health, as chairman of the State Committee for Mississippi, for the celebration of the President's Birthday on January 29, 1938."

Representative John E. Rankin, of the First (Tupelo) Congressional District:

"I cannot think of a more laudable cause or one that deserves more thoroughly the attention and support of the American people than that of stamping out this dreadful malady, Infantile Paralysis. I congratulate you on the great work your committee is doing, and wish for you unbounded success."

Representative William M. Colmer, of the Sixth (Gulf Coast) District:

"I am happy to advise that I am very much in accord with the program being conducted by your Committee in the interest of the fight against Infantile Paralysis. This disease is so serious that any effort made to curb it is certainly a laudable one. You have my best wishes in your efforts to this end."

Debt To Be Removed By Methodist On the Children's Home

Status of Orphanage's Finance Revealed At Clarksdale and Hattiesburg

The Mississippi and North Mississippi Conference of the Methodist Church, composed of the more than 300 churches of the denomination in this state, have unanimously declared that "the minous cloud of debt and foreclosure" must be removed from the Methodist Children's Home at Jackson.

Acting upon this expressed wish of the two Conferences every church is engaged in a vigorous effort to raise a fixed orphanage quota by December 31, 1937.

Presiding Elders of the twelve Methodist districts, preachers and leaders in every church and other friends of the Home have been mobilized in the campaign.

Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs of Shreveport, La., has brought to the Presiding Elders the imperative necessity for clearing the orphanage of its $70,000 indebtedness before the end of the current year.

Status of the orphanage's finances were revealed in similar resolutions adopted by the twelve conferences in session at Clarksdale and Hattiesburg.

The resolutions show that "in 1933 the home was in debt to an amount approaching $200,000, and since that time, through the efforts of Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs, the trustees, the superintendent, the presiding elders, the pastors and the members of the two Conferences, this indebtedness has been reduced to approximately $70,500."

It is pointed out that "there is in the hands of Mr. Stewart Gammlil, debt refunding treasurer, Jackson, the sum of $4,000."

A bright spot in the picture is revealed in the fact that "certain friends of the Home have agreed if the whole debt is paid during the year 1937 that they will give towards this payment the sum of $10,250, which is in addition to the sum of $4,000 now in the hands of the said Mr. Stewart Gammlil, treasurer."

Concessions have also been made by the banks and institutions which hold the notes of the Home, in that they "have agreed to waive the collection of any additional interest on condition that the whole debt is paid in 1937."

The conference delegates unanimously declared "it is the interest of our Home for these dependent children and of those who will follow them and that said Home be safeguarded by removing from it the ominous cloud of debt and foreclosure."

"There is existent and pronounced over the State of Mississippi on the part of the members of the church that said debt should be paid off now."

The conferences earnestly urged "that all the officials and members of the church do everything within their power to pay the full debt so that when December 31, 1937 comes around that this great benevolent institution of our church will be free of debt and the Home of our dependent children safe."

Broadway Limited

New York, Dec. 9.—There's cash money waiting for a new idea in nightclubs—but now! — They've tried 'em everywhere from Subway level up to the top of Rockefeller center — from the east side slums to the middle of Central Park — in ex-stables and in ex-churches . . . and they've run the gamut of decor from the dizzy zebra stripes of El Morocco through ship's innards and South Sea reaches to Haymows and horseshoes . . . now they want "something different" . . . and if you didn't know it—most any of the cafeterias will lend you a waitress if you refuse to lug your own tray — while some of the swank hotels and clubs have glorified safeterias — no counters but food set out on tables — for the gobblers who have an after-luncheon date or want to be in time for the first act . . . latest nightclub nuttiness — community singing — for them as ain't spry enough for community dancing — like the Beeg Appul . . . so maybe the great new idea will be a club with community eating — one big table like the old time boarding house down by the tracks . . . noticed now and then — Mariene Delrich doing the mighty Macintosh at la Conga with that Princeton undergrad who just barged up and asked her — but she's doing the rounds with dapper dancer Clifton Webb . . . the range of Sarawak that ras'la fell in London — just to keep you straight the rance could be plain Mrs. Brooke — her husband's granduncle was an Englishman who promoted himself to Rajah Nigh on a hundred years ago . . . Jon Hall of "Hurricane" getting the "oh" and "ah" from debutantes with a Tarzan Yen . . . Loretta Young who's going to top the Cinema Ladies of '37 — and who has learned how to act be sides . . . twelve Broadway hits are playing to standing room only . . . but seven of them will never be seen on the films . . . including "Julius Caesar" . . . and wouldn't W. Shakespeare turn over twice if he knew what his royalties would be if he was around to collect . . . a boost to the piccadilly bar's new electric indicator that gets you back to your seat on time after intermission . . . add places worth while — the new lounge bar of the Astor . . . and Frances Farmer will probably get the order of the Dragon or whatever the Chinese legion of honor is — she refuses to wear Jap silk stockings — uses Dixie cotton ones instead and says so in the program of "Golden Boy" — and in case you were worried about it only one enlisted man in the whole U. S. Navy was born in Japan . . . just to make a lucky — or unlucky — thirteen the opera too played to standing room at its annual opening — society's tophat and Tiara promenade . . . but don't think for a minute all the seats were filled — the ultra — ultra — parade the halls and the Foyer and the bar . . . it's only the gallery goes to hear the singing!

TWO distinct lines of Ford V-8 cars are now being displayed in dealer showrooms. One is a newly styled standard Ford line in three body types, the other a de luxe Ford line in eight body types. The de luxe sedan is pictured above. The de luxe sedans are larger in appearance, with longer hood and sweeping lines. The de luxe cars are powered with a 35 horsepower V-8 engine, the standard cars with either the 35 or the 60 horsepower engines. Newly styled interiors are pictured at right. both House and the Senate and is signed by the President, this column will carry a description of the main provisions of the law. In the meantime, the Senate and the House will continue their efforts.

Much has been written, spoken, read and heard about the Black-Connery Wage and Hour Bill, which passed the Senate last session and which has since been pending before the House Committee on Rules. The Committee refused to report it to the House, but under the rules a bill can be forced out of a Committee upon signature of 218 members. Early in the Special Session such a petition was filed and by Thursday of this week 218 Representatives signed it. This means that the measure will come before the House on December 13. Many amendments are being proposed, and there is no telling what final form this bill will take.

On Tuesday the President sent up a message asking the House and Senate to take action which would result in the withdrawal of a large part of the sum to be made available as federal aid to the States for road construction. As yet, neither Body has taken steps in that direction.

On Monday the President sent up a message asking the Congress to embark on the largest Housing Program yet undertaken by the Federal Government. Senator Wagner, of New York, immediately introduced a Bill to carry out the suggestion of the message, and this legislation will soon be before the Congress.

standards of its enlisted personnel, is a service for the ambitious only. It is more than a job, free lodging, or a meal ticket. For the weak or discontented man it is four long, dismal years. To the lazy man it is a commonplace job. But to the ambitious young man it is the ladder by which he may climb to promotion and a position of responsibility in military or civil life. Commissions, warrants, and the Naval Academy are open to enlisted men who can qualify.

Young Americans of sound physique, who have a desire to develop themselves both mentally and physically, and believe they would like military life, would do well to inquire at their local Post Office for literature and pamphlets, which tell the numerous opportunities and advantages afforded to men who serve as Uncle Sam's "sea soldiers." A letter of inquiry addressed to Marine Corps Recruiting Headquarters, 535 St. Charles Street, New Orleans, La., will receive a prompt reply.

Bronchial Coughs Need Creomulsion

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified product that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing inflamed mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in "loosening" and expelling the germ-laden phlegm.

The Medical Profession has for many years recognized the beneficial effect of Bechmann's Creomulsion in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist for blending Creomulsion with other ingredients and now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of genuine Bechmann's Creomulsion which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by both adults and children.

Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very root of the trouble to help loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles due to common colds—hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your drugstore, use it as directed and if you are not satisfied with the results, the druggist is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Creomulsion is one word—but has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion and you get the genuine product and the satisfaction that you want. (Adv.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—If you want a definite idea of what will go on in these United States during the next six months you need not wade through the pages of the Congressional Record. Consult, instead, the passenger list of the White House Yacht Potomac on its recent fishing trip.

Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and boss of the PWA, is here. He is there because business which a few short months ago was crying for the end of federal spending has now reversed its attitude and is pleading for a new priming of Government money.

Harry Hopkins, WPA Administrator is there. He is there because it has now become certain that the relief rolls will continue to rise sharply. The question must be decided of whether this increase will be taken care of entirely by some relief or whether WPA must be re-expanded to share the burden.

On the Potomac, too, is Robert L. Jackson, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the work of urging trusts and reputed the ablest man in his department.

Jackson's superior, Attorney-General Cummings, is rumored to be opposed to the trust busting plan. More, he is rumored to be unsympathetic to many other administration policies and projects.

But Jackson's presence on the Potomac does more than indicate he is the President's main stay in the Attorney-General's department. Mr. Roosevelt, it must be remembered, has asked the Federal Trade Commission to study the sharp increase in living costs and to determine whether these soaring prices are the result of monopolistic manipulation.

Mr. Jackson may be expected to recommend some very drastic legislation designed to curb, in future, such excessive profit taking as in the past year which finally resulted in the collapse of the pocketbook of the buying public and the present check in the tide of recovery.

No matter what plans are made either by the President and his advisors or by Congress it is certain that there will be no balanced budget this year. Federal expenditure will increase.

It has been pointed out, however, that if these increased expenditures bring about a result similar to that of the last four years, will be money well spent.

On June 30, 1933 the national debt was just under twenty billion as against a national income of just under forty billion.

On June 30, 1937 the national debt was just over twenty-seven

Regarding Cancer

A message of hope regarding cancer was voiced by Dr. Felix J. Underwood, state health officer, in a recent conference regarding this dread disease.

Stating that cancer may be cured when found in its early stages and treated adequately, the health executive urged physical examinations at least annually with definite reference to the dangers of malignancy.

"The specific cause of cancer is not yet known," Dr. Underwood said, "but definite progress has been made in its control. Early diagnosis followed by proper treatment with surgery, X-rays, radium, or some combination of them is saving human life every day."

"Cancer may affect any part of the body and it may strike a person of any age. The chances of having it increase with age, however, for twelve times more people die of it after forty than before."

"Every cancer begins as a single body cell which gets out of its natural boundary and starts growing independently in some other tissues of the body. The reason the cell escapes from its normal position in the body is attributed to irritation."

"Examples of cancer brought on by chronic irritation are cancer of the lip caused by hot pipe stem and cancer of the womb caused by inflammation due to injuries of childbirth. The most common symptom of cancer is an unusual growth, which frequently starts without any apparent cause. A lump appears in the breast. A mole or wart shows signs of change. A little thickening is noticed on the tongue or lip. A bone develops a swelling. In a very quiet way the growth of cancer may thus begin."

"Of the 140,000 people who died from cancer in the United States last year, almost 1300 were Mississippians," Dr. Underwood declared. "Though admittedly the high death rate from cancer is a grave problem for physicians and public health workers, their progress can go no further than the accumulated opinion of the citizenry."

"Voluntary agencies and tax-paying citizens of the state may do much more in the way of research and cancer clinics for early diagnosis and proper treatment. The Cancer Research Institute provided by Congress only a few months ago marks an enormous step in the right direction."

"By such measures as these," the health officer concluded, "it is hoped that cancer will take its place among the diseases which mankind no longer fears."

WASHINGTON SUMMARY

(Week Ending December 4)
(By Congressman A. L. Ford)
No report can be given at this time as to what kind of an agricultural Act our farmer friends are going to have for 1938. The Senate has spent two weeks in consideration of its Farm Bill, and a full week in the House still finds the bill quite a distance from final passage. Three days in the House were consumed by debate on the general provisions of the Bill, and the remainder of the time was taken by consideration of amendments.

Sure-Fire Methods In Curing of Pork Eliminate Hazards

Commercial Plants Mean That Farmers May Be Sure At Hog Killing Time

Pork curing methods and facilities have been so improved in recent years that the element of risk has largely been removed, writes J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture, in urging that farmers convert surplus corn into pork, then into old-time delicious hams and bacon.

One of the reasons why the same curing of meat was on a diminishing scale until quite recently, thinks the farm commissioner, was meat spoilage each year during the curing process because of unseasonable warm weather, though such losses were by no means universal. Good farmers all over the state have successfully cured pork year in and year out by time honored methods, and are still doing so, while new methods and facilities are being widely employed.

"Thousands of farmers are availing themselves of the commercial curing houses found in many localities. These curing houses do a complete, satisfactory and dependable job and are increasing in popularity.

"A method of curing pork when the weather is too warm for natural chilling has recently been published by the Alabama Experiment Station, and is said to be safe all the way from October to May. Under this method, after the head, backbone and ribs are removed, the hams are deboned and each cut into three slabs of ham, bacon and shoulder. After thorough salting, one pound of egg-size lumps of ice is packed with each pound of meat in alternate layers until the pack is complete. After 24 hours, the ice and water are removed and the meat resalted and packed down in alternate layers of salt and meat, making sure that each layer of meat is completely covered. After three more days the meat is again salted and repacked. After four more days, the surplus salt is washed off and the meat hung for smoking. Either plain salt, or a mixture in proportions of 20 pounds salt, 5 pounds sugar, and 1/2 ounces of saltpeter is recommended.

"Whatever the curing method employed, proper feeding, killing and dressing are important, and the bulletin 'Pork on the Farm' by the Extension Department of Mississippi State College, contains many helpful suggestions. Corn is now more plentiful in Mississippi than in any recent year, both corn and live hogs are relatively cheap.

TERRACING PRIMARY STEP IN EROSION CONTROL

Terracing a farm is a primary step in erosion control but terracing alone is not all that is needed to stop the land from washing away and to improve the fertility of the soil, E. H. White, director of the state extension service, said today as he urged farmers to consider every angle of erosion control.

While terracing and contour cultivation with the terraces is the foundation of any good erosion control program on most Mississippi farms, the extension director pointed out that something needs to be done to take care of the water at the end of the terraces and that farming methods need to be adopted that will check erosion between the terraces and put every acre on the farm to uses to which it is best suited.

Tests at the Soil Conservation Service Experiment Station at Stoneville, N. C., show that tons of rich topsoil wash out the ends of the best terraces that can be built where farming methods that check erosion between terraces are not followed.

As long as water runs down unprotected slopes soil will go with it, White said. Experience in erosion control demonstration areas in Mississippi show that farmers can do much to protect their fields by terracing them, farming on the contour so that each row is a little terrace, keeping the land covered with close growing soil-holding and soil-building crops as much as possible, rotating crops, planting badly eroded fields and bad strips across good fields to close growing soil-improving or hay crops, vegetating out lots to safely carry water from terraces, developing meadow strips to protect natural draws in the field, contouring and improving pastures, putting badly eroded land back to trees, turning water out of and planting vegetation in gullies, and in other ways.

That Mississippi farmers are becoming increasingly conscious of the extent of soil losses and are doing something about it, Director White said farmers of the state have planted a record acreage to winter legumes this fall and are literally flooding county agents with requests for help in terracing cropland that needs it.

At the same time farmers are taking more interest in planting seedling trees on idle lands and eroded slopes that are too steep for cultivation and that may be put to work earning an income through the growing of trees.

Farmers should keep in mind, White said, that they can earn payments to help pay a substantial part of the costs of carrying out many soil building practices if they will cooperate fully with the government in the agricultural conservation program.

and adequate supplies of hams, bacon and lard will save millions of dollars that we now send annually to other states for these necessities."

Pontotoc 4-H Boy Wins Trip For Electrification Survey

Jesse G. Henry, 19, of Pontotoc, is acclaimed state winner in the second National 4-H Rural Electrification Program conducted through the State Extension office, and as such is one of the delegation of Mississippians to the 16th National Club Congress in Chicago the first week in December.

The boy conducted his survey on his father's 355-acre farm which is already wired and partially equipped with electrical appliances, including six ceiling outlets, a burglar alarm, range, radio, iron, hot plate, churn and waffle in the dwelling, and 23 light outlets, and a feed grinder in the barn. Additional conveniences listed include 17 duplex outlets, six heat and power outlets, eight ceiling lights, air conditioner, sewing machine, electric fan, dishwasher, hot-unit, electric clock, player piano, meat grinder, water pump, and door bell for the house.

For the farm he suggests a dairy equipment sterilizer, heating unit, cream separator, motor, corn sheller, wood saw, hay hoister, grinder, work show motor, drill lathe, electric hammer, band saw, welding machine and forge. Henry receives a $50.00 merchandise certificate and his trip to Chicago through the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, which also provides college scholarships of $400, $300, and $200 for the top winners.

CHARACTER WORK BEING DONE ON 410 DEMONSTRATION FARMS IN STATE

A better knowledge of the soil on each farm is one of the most important steps in the whole-farm approach of controlling erosion and putting each acre of land to its best use, E. H. White, state director of extension said this week following a conference of extension specialists who shaped plans for improving the character of work being done of 410 demonstration farms located in the 82 counties of the state.

A lack of knowledge of each kind of soil and failure to put each field to its best use accounts for much of the loss of soil fertility on many farms of the state, the extension director said. White pointed to both farm experience and agricultural research in emphasizing the value of cropping programs, erosion control measures and soil building practices based on soil needs and that will produce the best returns from each acre in the form of pasture grasses, tree growth or crop production and at the same time control erosion and improve soil fertility.

Just like a carpenter must know the materials he is working with and be skilled in the tools he uses, the farmer needs to know the kind of soil he has if he is to farm it intelligently as well as to keep it from washing away. He needs to consider the thickness and texture of the fertile layer of topsoil as well as the character of the subsoil beneath. He needs to consider the slope of the land over each field, how badly the soil washes away and how much of it is already gone.

Even within a single field there may be a big difference in the character of the soil and the extent of erosion, because over the field there are steeper slopes from which practically all the topsoil has washed. Those badly eroded slopes need to be retired to thick-growing crops, while more level areas below are still good for careful farming. The farmer must learn to put each acre of his land to its best use if he is to secure maximum long-time results when both erosion control and farm production are considered, White concluded.

Food For Thought—And Action

By Howard Suttle, Director of Public Relations, State Planning Commission

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 9—Interest and illuminating information concerning Mississippi and her problems was revealed by speakers at a recent development conference staged in Hattiesburg under the joint sponsorship of the State Planning Commission and Rural Electrification Authority. Quotations of state officials and others are presented in brief paragraphs as "food for thought—and action" in working toward a happier and more prosperous Magnolia State.

Si Corley, Director of Conservation—"A beaver hide is today worth more than a bale of cotton."

Mayor Travis Boykin, of Hattiesburg—"Mississippians have quit trying to pull the house down upon themselves. We are now pulling together more than ever before."

R. W. Dunn, president of the Hattiesburg Chamber of Commerce—"We all recognize and realize that the future of the nation rests upon the future of our farmers."

L. J. Folse, director, State Planning Commission—"There's no such thing as civic freedom—or even religious freedom—without economic freedom."

Harry O. Hoffman, chairman, Mississippi Industrial Commission—"It is my personal opinion that no industry is worth while unless it can pay minimum wages of at least $10.00 per week to trained laborers."

Owen Cooper, assistant director, State Planning Commission—"It is estimated that 449,000 Mississippians are infected with syphilis. An average of 10 out of every 100 people who died in this state, pass out of existence without a doctor in attendance. One-half of the children are unattended by a physician at birth."

Roben L. Parson, chief, Land Planning Division—"Mississippi's greatest wealth is still in her land. Land use is, therefore, our greatest planning problem."

V. M. Foster, geologist, State Planning Commission—"Mississippi has clay resources which, if properly developed, would supply industries of the entire United States for an indefinite time."

A. D. Stewart, manager, State Cooperative Cotton Association—"One great need of the farmer is a better marketing program."

C. B. Anders, coordinator, Soil Conservation Service—"We can't divorce public agencies, whether supported by government or by private capital, from each other."

Evon A. Ford, chairman, State Rural Electrification Authority—"The United States has been sadly outstripped by other nations in rural electrification. Less than one home in 10 in America is served with electric power."

Allen T. Edmunds, supervisor of recreational study, National Park Service—"We must first determine existing areas, population and its distribution, and analyze our findings before making plans for permanent recreational facilities."

Fred B. Merrill, state forester—"Eighty percent of the death of young trees is due to forest fires."

Demonstrations In Hog Slaughtering

Demonstration in hog slaughtering and pork cutting and curing by county agents in Attala, Forrest, Rankin, Pearl River, Newton, Sunflower, Grenada, Chickasaw, and Prentiss counties, between November 18 and 20, emphasized vat scalding, using a dairy thermometer to assure correct temperatures, cleaning by use of inexpensive bell scrapers, chilling under controlled conditions regardless of outside temperature, standardized meth-temperature, standardized methods of cutting and the use of the 8-2-2 government recommended formula instead of straight salt or expensive substitutes. The sticking method, without knocking or shooting, produced superior pork carcasses, and was demonstrated more than 600 times. Plant managers, teachers, 4-H club members, vocational students and farmers were trained in methods used by county agents assisted by one or more specialists representing the Mississippi State College Extension Service.

Ford's Amendment Adopted By House

Washington, Dec. 2—The House of Representatives, in Committee of the Whole House, today adopted Congressman A. L. Ford's "equal portion" amendment to the pending Farm Bill. The vote on the question of adoption was 108 in favor of the amendment and 67 opposed.

Mr. Ford objected to certain language of the bill as presented to the House because, as then written it would allow the Secretary of Agriculture to take the State production allotment and divide it as he wished among the various counties or "other administrative divisions." He contended on the floor that the term pertaining to administrative areas was not defined in the bill and that in addition to leaving the Secretary power to discriminate between farmers in different counties it would also give him power to discriminate between farmers living in different communities of the same county. His amendment makes it mandatory upon the Secretary that every cotton farmer in the state be given the same percentage of tillable acreage as a basis for his cotton production, thus preventing any unfairness and discrimination from any source. Every county must be given the same percentage for its cotton farmers as is given the farmers in any other county. "Administrative areas" are wiped out altogether. The percentage will be made the same all over the State.

Upon leaving the House after the adoption of his amendment, Mr. Ford stated that he hoped that no parliamentary stratagem would be allowed to keep the amendment from remaining in the bill during the remainder of House consideration and that it would receive the approval of the Senate, as "it gives the small farmer a positive guarantee of equal treatment with the large one, and is the first time that such a guarantee has ever been plainly written into agricultural legislation."

Railroads have been paying more for what they have to buy and charging less for what they have to sell.

In order to balance costs and prices of transportation, it is necessary to increase freight rates roundly 15 per cent. When the rates are thus increased, they will still average about 15 per cent less than they were immediately following war-time federal control.

There is only one alternative to increasing the rates. That is to reduce payrolls and purchases, which constitute the expenditures of the railroads.

Nobody wants to see that happen and unemployment increased. Railroads should relieve instead of add to unemployment in their own ranks and—through purchases—in other lines of business.

This statement is made in the confident belief that the American people in their own interest will approve the choice between these two alternatives which the railroads are making.

make some cotton and a little corn, and want to sit down the balance of the year. They want the little cotton they raise in three months to keep them the other nine months. They cannot see why they should raise anything to eat. They don't want to fix a gate or plant a post, unless it be some little pine pole nearby the place needed. They let the pastures grow up in scrub bushes, let their own cattle starve or sell them rather than cut a sprout or dig a water hole. They seldom put up any canned goods for a rainy day. They had rather live without meat than to fix a suitable pen and water hole for a hog, preferring each Saturday to take chances on talking the landlord out of enough for bare existence.

Then, there is the third class of tenants shown in the Commercial called the "plant to prosper tenant." They are the ones who have followed that mandate of the Lord, which says, "Six days shall thou labor and by the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat bread." Their countenance reflects honesty and contentment for they have been faithful to the tenants entrusted to their keeping. Their pastures are filled, their barns overflow, their gardens good, their houses by their own efforts (made both comfortable and pleasing to the eye), their yards covered with flowers, good cattle are in the pastures, good hogs in the pen, chickens in the yard, the children are happy, well-fed and clothed, and will one day be the leaders of our land. This class of tenant is unsummed by labor agitators because he is honest. The "share the wealth" slogan has no appeal to him for he knows each man should live by his own labor, and he can see no reason why those who toil should share their labor with those who refuse to work. They work all the time at something and are happy in the response to their efforts. They know idleness is the devil's workshop. They do not ask and do not wish a 40 hour week, believing in their honest hearts that had God thus intended it, there would have been but 40 hours daylight in the week.

To sum it up, I will say a man is a tenant because he wants to be a tenant. He is one of the kind of tenants I have mentioned because that is the kind of tenant he chooses to be. Often the land lord is to blame for the conditions for lack of encouragement and cooperation. But a tenant is a full grown man and should know right from wrong. Often-times the tenant is better off than the landlord. Only this week I drew up some papers where the tenant furnishes the landlord and was taking the mortgage on the landlord.

Happy indeed should be the lot of the tenant farmer. He is as rich or as poor as his own energy or thrift chooses for him to be. He has no responsibility. He pays no taxes. He sends his children to school that he does not help sustain. He travels highways that he does not contribute to their upkeep. His house is free as is the fuel he uses. His pasture, his garden and patches also are free. The water is free. He sleeps soundly for there is no mortgage to torture him, no debt save for the little meat and bread he may buy which he should have raised himself. If for anything, the landlord is to blame, it is his own lack of intelligence, that he fails to lift himself from the slough that most tenants are content to drift in.

Our forefathers came to this country when it was malaria infected and Indians to dread. They came long distances in ox wagons to stake a claim. They built log cabins and felled the forests. They lived by the sweat of their brow. Their fare was frugal, sometimes hard. That they might own a home they persevered. Is there a tenant today willing to tread the same path they have trod? There are still frontiers to conquer for those who have sand in their craw. The government will help one desiring to become landlord. Are they willing to become one, or must it be handed with effort on a silver platter? Are they spineless?

If John L. Lewis wishes to organize any who is down-trodden, it should be the landlord who is the goat. We know the landlord, we know the tenant. We have all seen their faces.

Local Pair Win Delta Championship

Last week-end a team of four Bridge players, the Delta Champions, journeyed to Grenada to meet the challengers for the Delta Cup and Championship. This team consisted of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Buchanan and Mr. and Mrs. Ned Turner, both of Memphis. The challengers were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Abel, of Clarksdale, and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Boone, of Grenada. The Mississippi team won by the close margin of 600 points on a forty board cumulative score match. At the end of the first half of the match the champions were leading by some 700 points, but the challengers were able to overcome this handicap on one big swing hand where they gained 1600 points. Streamers will be awarded all troops which qualify on the following basis:

Blue Streamers for troops totaling 90 points or more.

There will also be special judging for Cub Packs based on the best exhibits of Cub handicraft and collections.

The Rotary Club of Greenville which is sponsoring the Exposition has made arrangements to house Scouts who plan to stay overnight. Through the courtesy of Taylor Smith, secretary of the Greenville Y. M. C. A. a large number of Scouts will be taken care of at the Y. M. C. A.

The Rotary Club committee is composed of Sidney Moyses, Leslie Fraxier, L. A. Waas, John S. Kirk, Forrest Murphy, Lyne Starling and James F. Crumpton, all of Greenville.

The Participation committee is headed up by Dr. H. G. Green of Clarksdale, A. P. Latimer, Shaw, Wm. Hunt, of Greenville, Tom Flowers of Greenwood and J. W. Almond of Tutwiler.

Scouts throughout the Council are selling tickets to the public and all troops will receive commissions on the ticket sales for their troop fund. Individual awards have also been arranged for Scouts selling the largest number of tickets.

This is a chance for everyone and will be well worth the time of anyone interested in youth.

Navy News

The ancient custom of placing coins under the step of a mast when building a vessel dates from antiquity. The officers of the U. S. S. New Orleans, commissioned in 1934, placed during construction ten pennies and two dimes beneath the foremast, three nickels and twenty-eight pennies at the heel of the mainmast. All coins were placed "heads up." This is a very old superstition. One explanation, given by the commander Beckett, R. N., is that possibly it is a survival of the old Roman Custom of placing coins in the mouths of the dead to pay their way to Caron for transportation across the River Styx. If a ship met with a mishap at sea, this insured that the way of all was paid. All customs, like those, tend to show that seafaring men subscribe most cheerfully to superstition, and that sea services unwittingly maintain many ancient traditions that have no particular bearing on modern sea life.
